Annual GreenSense Conference

Green Building Alliance Conference Showcases Green Building Products, Services and Providers

Slippery Rock, PA – May 16, 2007 – Kathleen Paul, Director of the Pennsylvania Center for Environmental Education (PCEE) and Melissa Reynolds, Coordinator of Educational Programs, recently attended the Green Building Alliance regional conference in Pittsburgh. “GreenSense 2007: Show Me the Money,” was a one-day event that featured nationally recognized speakers as well as educational sessions on the business advantages of green buildings. Attendees from the Mid-Atlantic and Ohio Valley region included building owners, facility managers, real estate brokers and financiers, architects, engineers and developers.

“As a result of this conference, we were able to expand awareness of the services of PCEE among these groups,” said Ms. Paul. “In addition, we discovered additional links and resources that will make the PCEE.org website even more useful to Pennsylvanian educators and businesses.”

About PCEE: The Pennsylvania Center for Environmental Education (PCEE) was created by Executive Order of the Governor in 1997 to “provide an avenue for increased participation by educators, local officials, citizen and non-profit groups, business and industry as partners in the implementation of quality environmental education on a state-wide basis.” Administered by the PA State System of Higher Education, PCEE is housed at Slippery Rock University.
